

Welcome from RegenWA

RegenWA would like to warmly welcome you to the 2019 Regenerative Agriculture Conference: Investing in our Food Future. While food security has been raised as an issue at other events, the 2019 Regenerative Agriculture Conference will be the first to lay the groundwork for industry-led solutions to meet the challenges of population growth and responsible environmental management. This is your chance to meet with and hear from fellow innovative producers, suppliers, community members, researchers and government agents. The Conference will act as a space to understand the productivity constraints and challenges of 'business-as-usual' farming practices and participate in building a strategic plan for investing in the future which you will be an integral part of.

The Conference is aimed to help meet our main objectives of:

1. Facilitating a peer-to-peer support and learning network between farmers who are willing to investigate, share and demonstrate leading sustainability practices.
2. Supporting collaborative and independent research to evaluate the applicability of these leading production systems, practices and technologies.
3. Identifying mechanisms that enable farmers to demonstrate their sustainability credentials to consumers who want to make more informed purchasing decisions.

We hope that you will join us in the movement towards the production of safe and healthy food using sustainable agricultural practices. We look forward to seeing you this Wednesday at Optus Stadium!
